

5. You will now be able to see the filters to apply to your class search.

6. You can search for general studies classes such as your humanities, sciences, etc. needed for your major by using the general studies filter. Once you check the box of the class you want, the classes will show below the class search.

7. Example: You need a literacy course to fulfill your degree requirement. You would check the literacy box and literacy classes will show.

8. Example: Now let's say you need an upper-division literacy course. You would click on the level filter.

A screenshot of a web-based "Class Search" interface. The page has a dark header with the title "Class Search" in white. Below the header is a search bar with a "Search by keyword" input field and a magnifying glass icon. To the right of the search bar are links for "Clear Filters" and "Hide Advanced Search". Below the search bar are several filter sections: "Session" and "Location" (both with calendar icons), and radio buttons for "Open Classes" and "All Classes". The main filter area is divided into columns: "General Studies" (with a dropdown menu showing "L: Literacy and Crit..."), "Instructor" (with an "Instructor" input field), "College/School" (with a "College or School" dropdown), "Level" (with a dropdown menu open, showing options: "Level", "Lower division", "Upper division", "Undergrad", "Graduate", "100-199", "200-299", "300-399", "400-499"), "Class Number" (with a "Class Number" input field), "Project-based" (with a checkbox), and "Honors" (with a checkbox). Below these filters are "Number of Units" (with a "Units" dropdown), "Days of the Week" (with a "Days of the Week" input field and a calendar icon), and "Start Time" (with a "Start Time" input field and a clock icon). At the bottom left, there are links for "Browse by Subject" and "View Class Blocks". Below the filters, it says "Filters: L: Literacy and Critical Inquiry ✕". At the very bottom, it says "Only showing 530 results. Use filters to improve your results." A large red arrow points from the top of the page down to the "Level" filter dropdown menu.
